INTRODUCTION

THE primary object of the publishers of the Canadian Trade Index is to provide buyers and sellers at home and abroad with an authoritative directory of the products manufactured in Canada with the names of the firms making them. It includes a complete list of all Canadian manufacturers having more than a local distribution for their products.

When first published in 1900, the Canadian Trade Index included only members of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Incorporated. Since that time, as a result of constructive suggestions from several Ministers of the Crown and members of the Association, the book has been enlarged to meet conditions in both domestic and overseas markets.

Many years ago it was made a national publication, including all manufacturers in Canada. To assist buyers in other countries, overseas representatives of Canadian manufacturers were listed and French and Spanish Sections added. Later, as a result of an arrangement with the Department of Trade and Commerce at Ottawa, the Index was enlarged to include a Special Export Section and a list of producers, shippers and exporters of agricultural produce and allied lines.

Owing to the detailed classification and the numerous advertisements, prospective purchasers are generally in a position to get in direct contact with manufacturers of the goods desired, but where information regarding specialized lines is required the gratuitous service of the Commercial Intelligence Department of the Association is offered. Representatives of overseas firms visiting Canada are also invited to call at the Head Office of the Association where they will be given every possible attention.

The Index is kept up to date by an annual revision, and the past year has been spent in checking and revising names, addresses and classifications. Each manufacturer is sent a revising form on which any changes in firm names or products are reported. Additional information is received from Government departments, mercantile reports, and our ten offices across Canada. Classifications are generally established by consultation with manufacturers and experts in various industries.

The publishers wish to thank all organizations, government departments, and the manufacturers who have so kindly aided by furnishing the information on which the book is based.

Mathews Conveyor Systems

Conveying has become a science, for no piece of equipment can be taken down from "off the shelf" with the assurance that it will fit any particular job. For that reason, Mathews has specialized in the design and construction of complete systems—most of them consisting of varied types of conveyers—to meet the handling requirements of the plants in which they are installed. Some of the units that go to make up a complete system are briefly described here. More detailed descriptions and many special units are shown in the Mathews Catalog which will be sent on request.

Mathews Gravity Roller Conveyers

Rollers, bearings, frame rails and supports for Mathews Gravity Roller Conveyor are built in a wide variety of sizes and types for loads ranging from 20 to 5000 lbs. per roller. Some are of special construction for use where moisture proof, acid-resistant or high temperature equipment is required.

Mathews Belt Conveyers

The construction of Mathews Belt Conveyers provides for standard roller conveyor units under the load surface of the belt, or where the product to be handled requires sheet metal or wood slider board.

Mathews Trolley Conveyers

Trolley wheels of pressed steel and cast iron; chains of malleable iron and drop forged steel; numerous supports, brackets, and hooks make Mathews Trolley Conveyers adaptable to almost any overhead conveying requirements.

Mathews Chain Elevators

For the automatic lifting and lowering of materials, Mathews has designed a number of chain elevators that are now being used in scores of different industries. These units are described in detail in the Mathews Catalog.

Mathews Chain Conveyers

Both malleable and steel chains are used in Mathews Chain Conveyers, which have a distinct field of application and are adaptable for use where resistance to high temperature, water, abrasion and the ability to convey goods on steep inclines is required. The Pallet Conveyor, with its moving bed of metal or wood, has the widest usage of the conveyers in this group.

Mathews Sheet Metal Spiral Chutes

Sheet metal of various gauges, according to the purpose to which the equipment is to be put, is used in Mathews Spiral Chutes. These chutes are built to fit the particular plants where installation is to be made. They are used for fire escapes as well as material handling.

Infiltration around one average sized, well fitted, window or door, kept closed, will exceed one million cubic feet of cold, dust and dirt laden, air, in one heating season. This forces out heated air and means extra fuel must be consumed to overcome this loss.

Speed Reducers

Used wherever High Speed Power is applied to Low Speed Use

Worm gear and helical gear units, in single and multiple reduction, are made in a wide range of sizes. Send for catalogue on either of these types, listing standard sizes, with power capacities and detail specifications. These are high grade, heavy duty gear drives, designed and rated for 24-hour continuous service. Ratios are available up to six thousand to one in simple, efficient, self-contained units.

Integral motorized speed reducers and increasers, built as one self-contained unit, are made in a full range of sizes, in both worm gear and helical gear forms, in single and multiple reduction, to give almost any desired final speed. This construction offers many advantages in freedom of arrangement. For example, the slow shaft may be vertical or at any angle. Due to eliminating the bed-plate and motor coupling, the total cost is favorable.

The Compensating Joint

Silent Chain Drives

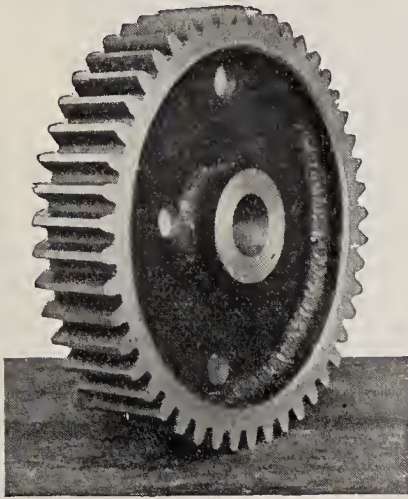

The Hamilton-Ramsey silent chain (made in Canada) will operate at higher speeds and run smoother and with less wear than any competing chain because of the compensating rolling cam action in the patented Ramsey joint. 24-hour delivery, in $\frac{3}{8}$ " to $1\frac{1}{2}$ " pitch.

Flexible Couplings

A full line of standard flexible couplings for both high speed and slow speed, the former illustrated here, are carried in stock up to 8¼ in. shaft size. Larger sizes to order. We also stock small power flexible couplings down to fractional h.p. ratings. Send for coupling catalogue.

PIPE AS PAGE-HERSEY MAKES IT

Constant improvement in mill processes, rigid supervision of raw material and factory inspection of every length . . . all combine for better pipe . . . pipe as Page-Hersey makes it. Pipe that is uniform, strong, ductile . . . pipe that is easier to cut, thread, bend, field or shop weld . . . pipe that is "scale free" to provide a cleaner flow and cut clogging, pitting and corrosion to a minimum.

3 PROCESSES
SIZES 1/8" TO 12" INCLUSIVE

● BUTTWELD The simplest form of pipe construction. Made from the finest tube strips, accurately butted and welded. In a complete range of sizes from 1/8" to 4".

● LAPWELD A superior pipe, pioneered in Canada by Page-Hersey. Withstands greater strain and pressure. Made in sizes from 1" to 12", inclusive.

LEADERS EVERYWHERE

Canadian-Made
Product*

For 13 consecutive years Champion Spark Plugs have been the choice of leading race drivers throughout the world . . because of their stamina . . because they have always lived up to every claim we have ever made for them. This year Champions are even better than before . . due to the introduction of Sillment, the newly-developed dry powder seal . . the first absolutely and permanently gas-tight construction. In addition to this noteworthy innovation, all Sillimanite insulators for Champions are now being manufactured by a distinctly new method that produces bodies of greater uniformity and far more dielectric and mechanical strength. Use the Spark Plugs Champions use.

Here we show only a few of the parts we are making for various Canadian manufacturers. These include automobile ornaments and hardware, plumbing fixtures, padlocks, door stops, hose nozzles, telephone stands, clock cases, candlesticks, and gears and other parts for washing machines. If your product has metal parts now made by the slower and more expensive sand-casting method, it will pay you well to look into the savings and better satisfaction of die casting.

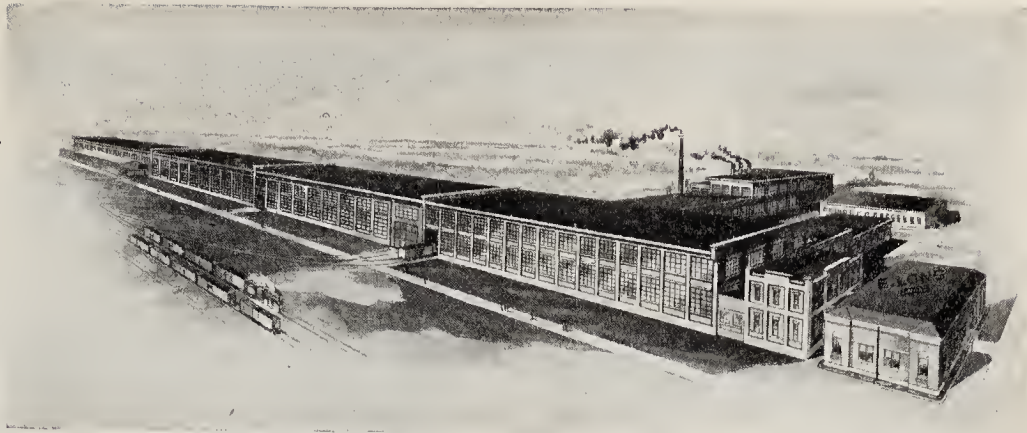

STRENGTH — Our zinc base alloy is from virgin metals of a tested, proven formula. A thermostat holds the casting temperature to an absolute pre-determined degree. Our machines, which are of the latest improved type, always produce a dense, homogeneous casting.

PRECISION — Our dies will assure all dimensions within extremely close limits. The variety of castings now being made in our plant is evidence of our ability to turn out successfully whatever you may require.

FINISH — Requires very little machining or polishing in your factory.

Everlasting Valves

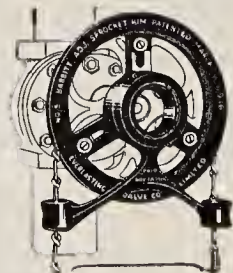

Are used in every kind of service where a quick-opening and drop-tight valve is desired for handling steam, water, air, oil, tar, gas, gasoline, acids, etc. They have also earned a world-wide reputation for boiler blow-off service.

Everlasting Valves are registered and approved in all the Provinces of Canada, and accepted by the Fire Underwriters for special service in connection with sprinkler systems.

BABBITT ADJUSTABLE SPROCKET RIMS

The Babbitt banishes the treacherous step-ladder. There is no need for climbing on the bench, machine or boiler. The Babbitt is a safety-first proposition. Any one can operate it from floor with ease. The simplest and least expensive device of its kind on the market.

OUR GUARANTEE

For two years after installation, should any Regular Everlasting Valve develop a leak, and not give perfect continual service, the same will be repaired or replaced without charge, or money refunded, as buyer may choose.

Monel is a registered trade mark applied to a technically controlled Nickel-Copper alloy containing approximately two-thirds Nickel and one-third Copper. Monel is mined, smelted, refined, rolled and marketed solely by International Nickel.

Characteristics. Monel is a beautiful white metal closely resembling platinum in color. It is corrosion-resisting, will not rust. It is clean, bright, sanitary. Monel is strong and tough as steel and will resist wear and abrasion to an unusual degree. Because it is so close-textured it does not absorb colors or odors and is thus particularly suitable for food service and for use in the textile industry where dyes are being handled.

SPECIAL EXPORT SECTION

THE material for this Section which gives in detail the various Government Services at the disposal of Canadian exporters, a statistical analysis of Canadian trade with the world and data in regard to export procedure, costs and financing of overseas shipments, was provided by the Department of Trade and Commerce in Ottawa.

The Department of Trade and Commerce of the Canadian Government, through the Commercial Intelligence Service with Trade Commissioners in the leading countries of the world, the Foreign Tariffs Division, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, the Motion Picture Bureau, the Exhibition Branch, the Publicity Service in Canada and the United Kingdom, is an outstanding factor in the maintenance and extension of our Empire and Foreign trade. Throughout Canada manufacturers shipping abroad are agreed on its value and efficiency in investigating foreign markets, assisting in the establishment of export sales connections, supplying information concerning customs, packing and trade mark regulations, promoting and safeguarding their interests in other countries and advertising Canada and Canadian products. Exporting firms consider its Services an essential complement to their own organizations.

The Canadian Manufacturers Association co-operates very closely with the Commercial Intelligence Service of the Department of Trade and Commerce. It notifies members when Trade Commissioners are visiting Canada, arranges appointments and advises its members of the assistance which this Service provides.

For the benefit of firms contemplating export business and others who may require information on points of procedure from time to time there are included articles on "Some Yardsticks for measuring ability to Export", "Five Methods of doing Export Trade" and "Financing Foreign Trade". These were prepared by experts on each subject.

It is hoped that the publication of this Section will prove useful not only to established and potential exporters in Canada but also to importers in other countries who may have occasion to consult it.

THE EDITOR.

PART 1.Department of Trade and Commerce

The Act of Parliament which in 1887, created the Department of Trade and Commerce and which was brought into effect by an Order-in-Council, dated December 5th, 1892, merely provided that there should be a Department of the Government of Canada to be called the Department of Trade and Commerce. The duties and powers of the Minister were defined to be the execution of laws enacted by the Parliament of Canada relating to such matters connected with trade and commerce generally, as had not been assigned to any other Department of the Government. In the succeeding years a wide range of services have been performed and at present the Acts administered by the Department include The Canada Grain Act; Electricity Inspection Act; Gas Inspection Act; Electricity and Fluid Exportation Act; Electric Units Act; Precious Metals Marking Act; Statistics Act; Water Meters Act, Inspection of; Weights and Measures Inspection Act; Inland Water Freight Rates Act; An Act to place Canadian Coal used in the manufacture of iron or steel on a basis of equality with imported coal.

The various functions of the Department are carried out by the following organizations:—

The Trade Routes and Steamship Subsidies Division.

PUBLICITY:

The Commercial Intelligence Service

The Commercial Intelligence Service is the chief agency of the government assisting export trade. It maintains abroad a staff of 35 Trade Commissioners and 27 Assistant Trade Commissioners, whose function it is to assist Canadian producers and manufacturers in developing export markets. This Service, which operates under the Department of Trade and Commerce, is at the free disposal of Canadian exporters.

When consulted by the Canadian exporter as to market outlets for his product, the Commercial Intelligence Service refers to several sources of information. Previous correspondence and reports from Trade Commissioners are examined. Canadian Export Statistics reveal the quantities, and to what countries the product in question is being shipped; and the import statistics of those countries show the quantities and sources of import. Consequently, the exporter can usually be given a good preliminary idea of the opportunities and difficulties, or competition likely to be met in any country. If there are any possibilities for his product, he is advised to communicate direct with the Trade Commissioner concerned, and to send him catalogues, samples, c.i.f. prices, and other data. The exporter is guided and assisted by the Trade Commissioner in forming a connection, and his interests are carefully watched until he is well established in the market.

Foreign importers, in many cases, approach the Trade Commissioner seeking possible sources of supply in Canada. Their enquiries are forwarded to the Department for publication in the Commercial Intelligence Journal and for circulation to Canadian firms likely to be interested.

The Trade Commissioner is often responsible for discovering and exploring new channels of trade. From his observations he may suspect that his territory may be developed into a market for some Canadian product. Once convinced that the commodity can compete with that offered by other countries, he will endeavour to interest importers in a trial shipment.

The Department at Ottawa publishes the Commercial Intelligence Journal, the subscription rate of which is the nominal one of $1.00 per year. This weekly publication contains the reports of Trade Commissioners pertaining to the market conditions of their territory in general, and the situation with regard to definite commodities in particular. It also contains other information regarding international trade, such as foreign exchange quotations, proposed sailings, tariff changes, trade inquiries, etc.

Assistance that can be given by Canadian Trade Commissioners

Many manufacturers and exporters apparently are not fully advised as to the valuable services that can be rendered by Canadian Trade Commissioners. The following summary is therefore issued with a view to rendering the activities of Canadian Trade Commissioners of greater use to manufacturers and exporters generally.

Commercial Information

1. Up-to-date information is available to manufacturers and exporters through the Commercial Intelligence Journal or by direct correspondence with the Department or any of the Canadian Trade Commissioners as to:—

- (a) The present and prospective demand for their goods.
- (b) Foreign and local competition (with specimens, catalogues and prices).
- (c) Details of best selling methods.
- (d) Reports on foreign buyers, though the Department cannot assume any responsibility in any opinions expressed by Trade Commissioners. They, however, will use their best endeavours to advise exporters as to the standing of such firms.
- (e) Specifications of articles in particular demand.
- (f) Inquiries for goods, and by means of an efficient system for collecting such inquiries the names can be obtained from time to time from the Commercial Intelligence Branch of the Department at Ottawa.

Agents, Buyers, and Distributors

2. Trade Commissioners will also:—

- (a) Recommend to intending exporters the names of responsible parties in a position to act as agents or buyers and distributors.
- (b) Give every possible assistance to such agents, etc., and will introduce them to influential individuals or associations who may be in a position to buy goods from Canada.
- (c) Give confidential information, when so requested, as to the activities of agents appointed by Canadian exporters, or firms to whom sales have been, or are being, made.

3. Trade Commissioners can assist in advising Canadian exporters and manufacturers:—

- (a) As to the best media in which to place advertisements and the form which such advertisements should take, i.e., their adaptation to the special requirements of the community.
- (b) In the display of catalogues, price lists and samples where they can be seen by potential buyers.
- (c) As to the distribution of trade literature and its probable cost.

General

4. (a) Trade Commissioners will always be glad to receive visitors from Canada and introduce them to possible buyers or agents, or put them in touch with such experts as legal advisers, interpreters, and shipping and banking representatives.
- (b) The good offices of Trade Commissioners can always be invoked with a view to settling difficulties which may arise between the Canadian exporters and buyers abroad.

- (c) Trade Commissioners will at any time provide such information as may be available as to freight rates customs, port dues, etc., so as to enable Canadian firms to quote prices for delivery overseas. They will be glad also to provide information respecting cost of travel, regulations applicable to commercial travellers, packing and marking of goods, shipping accommodation, storage arrangements, and any other foreign government regulations or conditions which have to be complied with.

Financial Arrangements

5. Particulars can be obtained with regard to:—

- (a) Terms of credit which may be given to foreign buyers.
- (b) Financial houses and banks who will discount bills or give credit.
- (c) Regulations governing the recovery of debts in foreign countries.
- (d) Disposal of goods abroad contracted for but not accepted by foreign buyers.
- (e) Infringement of trade marks or patent rights; and advice on registration.

Information Necessary to the Trade Commissioner

When a Canadian exporter desires the assistance of a Trade Commissioner in marketing his goods abroad, he should with the first letter provide that officer with the following:—

- (a) Catalogues and best export prices c.i.f. port of entry, or failing that, f.o.b. Canadian port. It is quite useless to send prices f.o.b. factory.
- (b) Details regarding process of manufacture if convenient.
- (c) If not too bulky, samples of what the firms have to offer should be forwarded—not necessarily a full range—and a draft or money order sufficient to cover the customs duties and landing charges on the samples.
- (d) Bankers' references.
- (e) The proportion of output which is available for export, time required to ship from receipt of order and the quantity for which orders will be accepted.
- (f) Details of the experience he has had in the territory served by the Trade Commissioner.
- (g) Information regarding previous connections, if any, which he has either with agents or importers. If connections still exist, what, if any, bearing will they have on fresh contacts that may be established through the efforts of the Trade Commissioner.

The Trade Commissioner will thus be in a position to make a survey of his territory, report the opportunities for the lines to be exported, and can then either place the exporter in communication with reliable importers or recommend suitable agents.

What the Canadian Exporter can do for the Trade Commissioner

The meagre information frequently furnished by Canadian exporters places a serious handicap on the Trade Commissioner in his efforts to market their products.

A general statement, therefore, of the facts about the exporter, his banking references, whether he is already engaged in foreign trade, and for what period and to what extent, are some of the essentials which should be given in the first letter either to the Department or to a Trade Commissioner, particularly the latter. He also wants general data about the commodity which the exporter wishes to sell in that particular market, noting any special advantages pertaining to the line offered, particularly as compared with well-known articles of the same type from other countries. He also wants to know exactly what the manufacturer is himself willing to do to place his goods in the new field: the basis on which sales would be made to the importer or on which goods could be offered for sale by a recognized agent, and the commission that would be paid the latter; what would be required of an importing house or agent in order to obtain the agency for the line; whether the manufacturer would send consignment stock or samples and in what quantity; whether he is prepared to advertise or to co-operate in advertising and to what extent; the facilities possessed by the manufacturer for export shipment, and the kind of supervision that is exercised by him over the packing of goods destined for a distant market.

Prices

Prices should never be quoted from an interior manufacturing point in Canada. Where quotations c.i.f. port of destination are not practicable, they should be given f.o.b. steamer, but it is strongly recommended that prices should be quoted c.i.f. This is a most important point, as the foreign buyer has no definite knowledge of the charges likely to be incurred if quotations are f.o.b. cars at port of shipment and freight rates from some interior point in Canada to the seaboard are unobtainable in foreign countries. He has no means of knowing insurance rates, or the elements that enter into the fixing of the premiums. As a rule he is unable to obtain a quotation of an outward freight rate at an inward port, as the general practice of steamship companies is to refer a request for a freight rate from (say) Montreal to Auckland to the agent in the former city, although an approximate rate may be quoted. The foreign buyer is at a distinct disadvantage unless prices are quoted c.i.f.

Discounts

Discounts should be printed, or typewritten, preferably on a folder or slip accompanying the catalogue. In submitting an illustrated descriptive catalogue to prospective customers the importer should not be placed in the position of having to disclose the exact terms on which the goods are offered to him.

Gross and Net Weight

A knowledge of the gross and net weights per unit quoted is essential. Without these the prospective purchaser is unable to estimate laid down costs.

Summary of Points to be Noted

The fullest possible information in regard to the commodity and complete details on the following points would greatly aid the Trade Commissioners in the intelligent handling of inquiries addressed to them as to the introduction and subsequent marketing of Canadian goods on behalf of exporters:—

1. Cable address, code used, and special code words not in the regular code books.
2. Bankers' references.
3. (a) The basis on which prices are quoted, whether c.i.f. main foreign ports; f.a.s. Canadian ports; or f.o.b. vessel.
- (b) Are prices in Canadian or American funds?
- (c) If prices are c.i.f. and transshipment has to be made, are such items as consular charges and disbursements at port of transshipment and/or unloading for account of buyer?
4. Are quotations firm, or subject to change without notice due to fluctuations in costs of raw material?
5. On what quantity basis are quotations made? Can prices be reduced on quantity orders, and if so how much?
6. Are orders subject to acceptance by exporter?
7. What brand do lines bear, and are these to be sold under this brand in foreign markets?
8. What is the nature of packing? Heavy wooden crates, boxes, new bags or burlap?

9. Are lines stocked and available for immediate shipment? If not, how long after receipt of order will goods go forward?
10. What are your terms? Is there a special discount for cash?
11. What is the gross and net weight in pounds? Measurement in cubic feet?

With the foregoing information on hand, supplemented by recent catalogues and descriptive literature, and, if not too bulky, samples—not necessarily a full range—Trade Commissioners are put in a position to give the best service to Canadian exporters and can either place them in communication with reliable importers or recommend suitable agents.

Trade Commissioners' Tours

The periodical return of Trade Commissioners for official tours of the Dominion is one of the most important factors in effecting practical co-operation between the Canadian exporter and the foreign importer. The Trade Commissioner can during the course of his tour call upon or discuss export problems with practically every firm specially interested in exporting to his territory. The Department endeavours to bring back the Trade Commissioners by a scheme of rotation, giving special consideration to officers in tropical or unhealthy posts, but these visits are always subject to the exigencies of trading conditions, and of the Service generally. Well in advance of the time of arrival in Canada they circularize individual exporters for the purpose of determining what special points they wish to take up and on which full information is secured. In addition to this form of publicity, the department publishes a notice in the Commercial Intelligence Journal inviting firms who may be interested in any particular territory to state whether or not an interview is desired. The names of such firms, together with those with whom the Trade Commissioner has been in communication, form the basis of the itinerary. Firms anxious to interview any Trade Commissioner on tour may do so by communicating with the Director of the service.

Foreign Tariffs Division

The primary purpose of the Foreign Tariffs Division is to give information to exporters and others concerned, on such subjects as customs duties leviable in British and foreign countries; commercial treaties; tariff preferences and their administration, including Canadian content requirements; certificates of origin and direct shipping; invoicing and consular procedure; customs valuation and anti-dumping legislation; quota restrictions; export bounties; laws on merchandise marks, food standards, animal and plant pests and related governmental trade regulations. Exporters require detailed and practical advice on these subjects, necessitating interpretation of complicated laws and regulations which, taken as a whole, are subject to constant change.

The method by which the Foreign Tariffs Division deals with the tariffs of the world is to allot zones or groups of countries to a particular official, the allotment in each case depending on the importance of the trade of Canada with the particular area and character of the Customs laws involved. Information is distributed by answering specific inquiries, of which many are received daily; by articles in the Commercial Intelligence Journal; by notifications of changes in tariffs or trade regulations; and by circulation of pamphlets.

On account of the information collected for trade promotion work and the correspondence conducted with export interests, the Foreign Tariffs Division co-operates in assembling data for negotiation of trade agreements between Canada and other countries, and participates in various tariff bargaining activities.

The chief single source of reference material used is the International Customs Tariffs Bureau at Brussels, created in 1890 by an international convention to translate and circulate tariffs, and which has since been maintained by the leading commercial countries of the world including Canada. Other important sources are the tariffs and official rulings in various languages published by the respective governments concerned, Canadian Trade Commissioners, commercial intelligence journals of important commercial countries, miscellaneous official reports and general reference books. The information thus obtained is classified for convenient reference.

Subsidized Steamship Services

When the Department came into being, a number of local and foreign steamship services which previously had been subsidized by the Canadian Government and payments made by the Department of Finance, were placed under its jurisdiction.

Ocean subsidies are paid to assist in the maintenance of services which would otherwise be unable to operate, on account of insufficient revenue, and which supply necessary trade connections between Canada and other countries; for the benefit of Canadian exporters, and to enable them, by means of reasonable freight rates and regular sailings, to compete with other countries in foreign markets; and for the transportation of Canadian mails overseas, free of charge to the Post Office Department, and without additional cost to the Government.

Subsidies for local services are paid to assist in the maintenance of coasting services for the purpose of giving regular sailings and adequate facilities for communication between ports and settlements on the mainland, which are in many cases far removed from railways and in some cases have no highway facilities; to give necessary and regular communication to islands isolated from the mainland; for the free transportation of mails without additional cost to the Government in cases where the services performed are found suitable for that purpose by the Post Office Department; and to carry supplies to outlying and otherwise isolated districts.

Publicity

To meet the increasing demand from Canadian and foreign publications for formative and interpretive material relative to both external and internal affairs, the Publicity Branch was organized about nine years ago. Its primary functions are to prepare such articles, or supply material for articles, for trade and industrial publications both at home and abroad. It also places in the Canadian press such advertising as may be deemed desirable from time to time to direct attention to the services which the Department offers to Canadian business men and in selected publications in foreign countries featuring Canadian sources of supply and Canadian products.

All Canadian Trade Commissioners are furnished regularly for local distribution with news items concerning Canada and pictorial matter which is finding its way to an ever increasing extent in the rotogravure and other sections of the leading newspapers throughout the world.

With the co-operation of the Department of Transport and through the Canadian Press, a daily radio news service thoroughly Canadian in character is provided to all shipping on the Pacific Ocean within a listening radius.

Canadian Government Motion Picture Bureau

The Canadian Government Motion Picture Bureau was organized in its present form some fifteen years ago for the production and distribution of films and photographic materials and to act as a central organization for the production of such materials for all Government Departments. The headquarters and plant are in Ottawa.

Its activities are carried on under three divisions, viz., motion picture division, 16 mm film division and still photographic division. The plant of the Bureau is completely equipped with the most up-to-date facilities for the production and processing of all kinds of sound and silent films, film slides, photographs, lantern slides, enlargements, transparencies and other photographic materials for the purpose of disseminating information with respect to Canadian resources, basic industries, scenic attractions, etc., and by this means to promote trade and tourist travel.

The bulk of the film and photographic work in field, studio and laboratory is performed by its permanent staff but contact is maintained with selected cinematographers and photographers in all parts of Canada to whom, if occasion demands, assignments may be given, thus ensuring, at all times, Dominion-wide coverage. Close co-operation is also maintained with the Photographic Section, R.C.A.F., the Photographic Department, Canadian National Railways, and with other similar governmental organizations.

The following table indicates the distribution of films representing a total footage of approximately 5,500,000 feet in active circulation as of November 30th, 1936:

In addition, a series of sound films dealing with Canadian industries, resources, scenic and tourist attractions is in active circulation among the theatres in Canada, the United Kingdom, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, the British West Indies, India, the United States and other parts of the English-speaking world. It is also planned to produce foreign language versions of these films for exhibition in other important countries.

Canadian Government Trade Commissioners are kept supplied with films and photographs for circulation, exhibition and publication. The Bureau not only actively co-operates with the other Branches of the Department of Trade and Commerce, but with other Dominion Government Departments, the Provincial Governments, railway and steamship companies and Tourist and Publicity Bureaux in promoting trade and tourist travel by means of films and pictorial material. A large amount of pictorial display material is furnished for the use of the Canadian Government Exhibition Commission, the Director of Trade Publicity in Great Britain, the Canadian Travel Bureau and other such organizations.

The still photograph division maintains a library of over 20,000 photographs of Canada, thousands of which are distributed to the press, trade and other publications each year.

Canadian Government Exhibition Commission

The Canadian Government Exhibition Commission, with headquarters in London, and a liaison officer in the Department at Ottawa, has as its main objectives: First, to provide an efficient and comprehensive method of advertising Canadian goods throughout the British Isles by participation in all leading exhibitions; second, to extend the distribution of Canadian produce and goods to both traders and consumers by demonstration of their quality; third, to assist Canadian manufacturers to extend their business abroad by enabling them to display their products under the most favourable conditions; fourth, to display and advertise Canadian natural resources, thereby directing attention to the Dominion as a land of opportunity; fifth, to organize Canadian exhibits at International Exhibitions as and when considered to be advantageous to do so.

The activities contemplated during the present year include Canada Shops to be organized in co-operation with Trade Commissioners; British Industries Fair at London and Birmingham; Housing and Health Exhibition, Glasgow; Imperial Fruit Show; Ideal Homes Exhibition, Belfast; Royal Netherlands Spring Fair; The Aldershot Show; The Dairy Show, London; additional exhibitions organized in co-operation with Trade Commissioners; the International Exposition, Paris; and general propaganda which includes loan exhibits of decorative material and samples, displays in departmental stores, decorative material loaned to bazaars and pageants, displays of natural resources, descriptive literature and general publicity.

Full information with respect to any exhibition in which Canadian firms wish to participate may be obtained on application to the Exhibition Commissioner in London or the Department at Ottawa.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics was set up by statute as the central statistical department for Canada. It is mainly organized to compile and issue statistics under the following headings: Population—Census and Vital Statistics; Agriculture; Fisheries, Furs, Animal and Dairy Products; Mining, Metallurgical and Chemical; Forestry and Allied Industries; General Manufactures; External Trade (Imports and Exports); Internal Trade; Transportation; Finance; Administration of Justice; Education; and General Statistics.

The official trade statistics of Canada are made available by this Bureau. Statements of Canada's imports and exports and the latest trade information are published monthly, quarterly and annually, supplemented by numerous press letters dealing with particular commodities.

An annual record of Canadian production is kept with detailed records of internal marketing conditions. A close contact with current economic developments in all other countries is also maintained with a library of statistical publications of practically every country in the world.

The Bureau of Statistics, therefore, has available complete reference material necessary for studies in connection with export problems.

Canada Grain Act

Under the Canada Grain Act the Board of Grain Commissioners was created to have general supervision over grain inspection in Canada.

The headquarters of the Board which are at Winnipeg, comprise five principal divisions, charged respectively with administration, inspection and grading, registration of receipts, weighing of grain and the receiving and storing of grain in Government elevators, and two subsidiary organizations, viz., Grain Appeal Tribunals and the Eastern and Western Committees on Grain Standards.

To describe the development of grain warehousing or storage in Canada, from primitive facilities which existed until a few years ago to the modern elevator capable of storing from 8,000 to 7,500,000 bushels of grain, would be a big task in itself. The achievements of the Western farmer in that respect have led to the cultivation in new sections of the Canadian West, the extension of civilization and the placing of Canada in the forefront of the world's grain trade.

Review of Canada's Foreign Trade, 1935-36

World trade during the calendar year 1935 shows an upward trend compared with 1934. Canada's trade also showed a substantial recovery. In 1935 the trade of thirty-five (35) leading trading countries of the world, comprising about 82 per cent of total world trade, increased 4.6 per cent; imports increased 4.1 per cent, and exports, 5.0 per cent. Prominent factors operating to expand world trade were: (1) the general economic recovery; (2) the narrowing of fluctuations in the exchange rates of various national currencies; (3) the opening up of channels of trade by reciprocal trade agreements. Canada has recently negotiated trade treaties or agreements with a number of countries, the most comprehensive being that with the United States, effective from January 1, 1936.

Total Canadian trade in each month of the fiscal year 1935-36 shows an increase over the corresponding months of 1932-33, 1933-34, and 1934-35, except for the month of June, 1934; while imports and exports also show an increase in each month in the fiscal year 1935-36 over the corresponding months in 1932-33, 1933-34, and 1934-35, except for the month of December, 1934, in imports, and the months of May, June, and July, 1934, in exports.

The total trade of Canada in the fiscal year 1935-36 was valued at $1,425,191,000, imports accounting for $562,719,000 of this amount, domestic exports for $849,030,000, and foreign exports for $13,442,000; the increase in total trade in the fiscal year 1935-36 over the fiscal year 1934-35 amounting to $138,475,000, or 10.8 per cent; in imports it was $40,288,000, or 7.7 per cent; in domestic exports, $92,404,000, or 12.2 per cent; and in foreign exports, $5,783,000, or 75.5 per cent. Empire countries accounted for 45.3 per cent of the increase in Canada's total trade from 1934-35 to 1935-36, and foreign countries for 54.7 per cent; imports from Empire countries accounting for 53.5 per cent of the total increase in imports, and foreign countries for 46.5 per cent; while the Empire's share in the increase in domestic exports from 1934-35 to 1935-36, was 44.5 per cent, and foreign countries, 55.5 per cent.

Canada's Position in World Trade, 1935

During the calendar year 1935, Canada maintained a relatively high position amongst the leading commercial nations of the world in international trade, occupying sixth place in 1935, as last year, being exceeded in value of total trade in 1935 only by the United Kingdom, the United States, Germany, France and Japan. In import trade, Canada in 1935 was in ninth place, as last year, being exceeded in value of imports by the United Kingdom, the United States, Germany, France, Japan, the Netherlands, Italy, and Belgium; while in export trade she occupied fifth position in 1935, as in 1934, being exceeded in value of exports by the United States, the United Kingdom, Germany, and France.

The following table gives further details respecting the relative position of the leading commercial countries of the world.

Relation between Trade in Raw and Manufactured Products, 1935-36

Canada was not engaged to any great extent in manufacturing processes for some years after Confederation, and consequently her imports consisted very largely of manufactured goods, and her exports of raw and semi-manufactured products. Since the opening of the twentieth century, a conspicuous change has developed, a large percentage of Canada's imports consisting of raw and semi-manufactured products for use in Canadian manufacturing industries, and the exports consisting to a considerable degree of products which have undergone some process of manufacture. Canada, during this period, has passed through much the same stages of development in her economic life as did the United States from 1870 to 1900. From 1870 to 1900 the imports of raw materials into the United States increased from 25.2 to 44.0 per cent of the total imports; and fully manufactured products decreased from 62.1 to 40.2 per cent; while exports of raw materials from the United States during the same interval decreased from 67.7 to 40.2 per cent of the total exports, and fully manufactured products increased from 28.6 to 48.6 per cent. Compared with 1900, the 1935 statistics show that imports of raw materials into the United States increased from 44.0 to 44.4 per cent of the total imports, and exports decreased from 40.2 to 33.1 per cent of the total exports; whereas imports of fully manufactured products decreased from 40.2 to 35.5 per cent, and exports increased from 48.6 to 51.3 per cent. Compared with 1930 the United States statistics for 1935 indicate a decline in the percentage of raw materials imported, but an increase in the percentage exported, a decrease in the percentage of semi-manufactured products imported, but an increase in the percentage exported, while the imports of manufactured products in 1935 show an increase over 1930, and the exports a decrease.

From 1914 to 1936 (fiscal years) the percentage of imports into Canada of raw materials of the total imports increased from 21.8 to 29.4 per cent, while exports of raw materials of the total domestic exports decreased from 63.2 to 31.1 per cent. Canada's imports of fully manufactured products from 1914 to 1936 decreased from $426,300,000 to $336,400,000, or 21.1 per cent; while the domestic exports of fully manufactured products during the same interval increased from $115,300,000 to $324,200,000, or 181.1 per cent. The percentage of imports of fully manufactured products from 1914 to 1936 decreased from 68.9 to 59.8 per cent, while the percentage of exports of fully manufactured products increased from 26.7 to 38.2 per cent. The decrease in the percentage of exports of raw materials and of fully manufactured goods in recent years was attributable to the drastic decline in commodity prices; prices of raw materials falling much more rapidly than those for manufactured goods.

Canada's Domestic Exports of Eighty-Six Leading Commodities, 1935-36

The statistics in the following table giving "Canada's Domestic Exports of Eighty-Six Leading Commodities, 1935-36", show that the total value of these commodities was $801,618,000, or 94.4 per cent of the Dominion's total domestic exports. Last year similar exports were valued at $719,927,000, so that the increase in the value of these commodities in 1935-36 compared with 1934-35 totalled $81,691,000. Sixty-four of the eighty-six commodities listed show increases, 1935-36 compared with 1934-35, and twenty-two decreases. Of the fifty-eight commodities for which there were quantity statistics, thirty-three had increases in both the quantity and the value; one had an increase in the quantity but a decrease in the value; fifteen had decreases in both the quantity and the value; while nine had decreases in the quantity but increases in the value. Of the twenty-eight commodities for which there were no quantity statistics, being entered at value only, twenty-two had increases, and six decreases. An analysis also shows that of the fifty-eight commodities listed for which there were quantity statistics, thirty-four of these were exported at a higher average export price per unit in 1935-36 than in 1934-35, and twenty-four at a lower average export price. The total value of the thirty-four commodities exported for which the average export price was higher in 1935-36 than in 1934-35, amounted to $478,681,000, while the total value of the twenty-four commodities for which the average export price was lower, amounted to $219,047,000. The value of the twenty-eight commodities for which there were no quantity statistics, was $103,890,000, twenty-two of which of a value of $92,135,000 had increases, 1935-36 compared with 1934-35, and six of a value of $11,755,000, decreases.

Canada's Trade Via the United States, 1935-36

Canada's imports from overseas countries via the United States have steadily declined in recent years, especially those from the British Empire. This decrease has resulted from:—(1) general propaganda to utilize Canada sea and river ports; (2) additional concessions to goods imported under the British Preferential tariff if imported direct; and (3) provision in trade treaties and agreements negotiated with foreign countries that goods must be imported direct in order to obtain the full benefits of special rates of duty.

There was an increase in imports from overseas countries via the United States during the fiscal year 1935-36 compared with similar imports in 1931-32, of $1,321,940; the decrease in the imports from the British Empire amounting to $617,258, while from foreign countries the increase was $1,939,198. The imports via the United States in 1935-36 were greater than for the past four fiscal years. The statistics in the following table provide an analysis of this feature of Canada's import trade for the last five fiscal years:—

The exports from Canada to overseas countries via the United States show a decided decrease during recent years, although there was an upward trend in the fiscal year 1935-36 compared with the fiscal years 1931-32 to 1934-35. The proportions of Canada's exports via the United States for the fiscal year 1931-32 amounted to 18.72 per cent; 1932-33, 14.18 per cent; 1933-34, 14.41 per cent, 1934-35, 17.28 per cent and 1935-36, 18.43 per cent. From 1931-32 to 1935-36, the proportion of the Dominion's exports to the United Kingdom via the United States decreased from 25.53 to 16.55 per cent; while the exports to other Empire countries via the United States increased during this period from 10.09 to 19.27 per cent; and to foreign countries, from 12.19 to 24.45 per cent. When adjustments are made for the re-routing of Canadian barley, oats, rye and wheat from United States lake ports, via the St. Lawrence route for ocean shipment at Canadian sea or river ports, chiefly Montreal, it will be found that the proportions of Canada's exports to overseas countries via the United States will be considerably decreased and those via Canadian sea or river ports increased by a similar amount. The total value of commodities exported to overseas countries via the United States in 1935-36 was $25,856,104 greater than for the fiscal year 1931-32. Comparisons for the past five years were as follows:—

The statistics in the following table giving "Principal Commodities Exported from Canada to Overseas Countries via the United States and via Canadian Sea or River Ports, 1935-36," illustrate the details of this movement. The 45 commodities listed are representative of the Dominion's exports to overseas countries, as they comprise 81.8 per cent of the total exports to overseas countries; and they also represent 89.5 per cent of all goods shipped to overseas countries via the United States, and 80.0 per cent of those going via Canadian sea or river ports. During the past few years a considerable amount of Canadian grain exported from Fort William and Port Arthur to overseas countries via the United States has been re-routed from United States lake ports for shipment via Canadian sea or river ports, chiefly at Montreal. The amount of Canadian grain re-routed for export at Montreal or other Canadian ports during the calendar years 1928 to 1935 was:—

Grains	1928	1929	1930	1931	1932	1933	1934	1935

This re-routed Canadian grain was not recorded as an export at Montreal or other Canadian ports because it had already been recorded as an export at Fort William or Port Arthur. It was recorded, however, as “intransit” grain from the United States via the Port of Montreal or other Canadian ports. In order to obtain the actual amount of barley, oats, rye and wheat shipped via Canadian sea or river ports, this re-routed Canadian grain should be added to the quantity already thus recorded and deducted from the quantity shown as exported via United States channels. When adjustments are made the actual quantities of barley, oats, rye and wheat exported to overseas countries via the United States (indirect) and via Canadian sea or river ports (direct) during the fiscal years 1931-32 to 1935-36 were:—

Agriculture

To get a proper perspective of Canadian agriculture one has to consider the value of agricultural production in relation to Canadian industry as a whole. With an estimated gross revenue of $943,081,000 for 1935, agriculture was the outstanding contributor to national wealth among the primary industries, and was exceeded only by manufactures in the industries of secondary production.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics estimates the gross agricultural revenue of Canada at $943,081,000 for 1935 as compared with $942,565,000, the revised estimate for 1934. This represents a slight increase of $516,000, less than one per cent. Increases in the revenue from farm animals, dairy products and fruits and vegetables were largely offset by the decreased revenue from field crops. The agricultural revenue of the prairie provinces was estimated at $352,519,000 in 1935, compared with $354,976,000 for the previous year.

The total area sown to the principal field crops in 1936 was estimated at 57,662,550 acres, an increase of 646 thousand acres as compared with 1935.

The per capita consumption of eggs increased from 16.8 dozens in 1920 to 22.34 dozens in 1935. Total consumption of eggs in Canada in 1935 amounted to 244,576,368 dozens. The per capita consumption of butter in 1921 was 25.79 pounds; in 1935 it reached 31.11; cheese used in 1921 amounted to 2.51 pounds per capita and last year 3.62 pounds. In 1921 the per capita consumption of ice cream was 4.96 pints, in 1931 it had grown to 6.32 pints and in 1935, decreased to 4.79 pints.

The estimated gross agricultural wealth of Canada in 1935 as estimated by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics amounted to over 5 billion dollars, made up as follows:

Lands.....	$2,323,164,000
Buildings.....	1,342,924,000
Equipment.....	650,664,000
Livestock.....	489,326,000
Poultry.....	40,292,000
Fur Farm Animals.....	7,653,000
Agricultural Production.....	943,081,000
Total.....	$5,797,104,000

This figure represents a decrease in agricultural wealth from 1925 of $1,900,100,000 and a decrease of $2,444,364,000 from the high of 1928. The increase over 1934 amounted to $44,367,000.

The distribution of agricultural wealth in Canada by provinces is interesting in that it follows closely the distribution of population, as is shown by the following figures:

PROVINCE	Estimated Agricultural Wealth	Revenue
Prince Edward Island.....	$ 67,516,000	$ 12,397,000
Nova Scotia.....	132,618,000	27,042,000
New Brunswick.....	126,252,000	25,278,000
Quebec.....	1,038,947,000	174,758,000
Ontario.....	1,638,035,000	313,077,000
Manitoba.....	420,186,000	56,530,000
Saskatchewan.....	1,305,791,000	154,896,000
Alberta.....	879,118,000	141,093,000
British Columbia.....	188,641,000	38,010,000
Total.....	$5,797,104,000	$943,081,000

From these figures it will be apparent that it took $6.14 of investment to produce $1.00 of revenue in the agricultural industry last year.

The relative standing of the several sources of Canadian agricultural revenue in 1933, 1934 and 1935 are shown in the following table (in thousands of dollars):

	1933	1934	1935

From a financial standpoint, despite depressions in prices, the Canadian farming industry appears to be on an essentially sound basis.

Under the Dairy Industry Act administered by the Federal Department of Agriculture, all butter and cheese for export must be graded, as a result of which Canadian dairy products have gained a reputation second to none on the export market. In fact Canadian cheese commands a premium over all other cheese imported into the markets of the United Kingdom.

The total value of field crops in Canada in 1936 is estimated at $599,421,400 as compared with $512,176,900 in 1935, an increase of 17.0 per cent. The preliminary estimate places the Canadian apple crop for 1936 at 3,786,900 barrels. This is 713,000 barrels less than the 1935 crop, and approximately 644,400 barrels below the average for the last five years.

The yield of potatoes for 1936 amounted to 39,034,000 cwt., an increase of .9 per cent from last year's production, but higher prices gave a value 25 per cent more than in 1934.

The increased popularity of Canadian fruit and vegetables, both fresh and canned, on the export market is due essentially to the grading and inspection service and regulations provided by the Government.

Fisheries

The value of output of the Canadian fisheries in 1935 was $34,427,854, compared with $34,022,323 in the preceding year. These totals represent the value of the fish as marketed, whether sold for consumption fresh, or canned, cured or otherwise prepared. The 1935 value is the highest recorded during the 5-year period 1931 to 1935. The total value of the fisheries output in 1935 is divided between sea and inland as follows: sea fisheries, $29,175,400; inland fisheries, $5,252,454. The former shows a decrease compared with the preceding year, and the latter an increase.

Of chief importance is the salmon with a marketed value in 1935 of $12,540,307, or 36 per cent of the value of output of the whole of the fisheries in that year. To the total value of the salmon output, British Columbia contributed 96 per cent, and the other provinces combined, the remaining 4 per cent. The chief item in the salmon output is the canned product, which had a total value in 1935 of $9,663,305. The exports of canned salmon during the year amounted to 508,478 cwt. (approximately 1,059,329 cases), while the countries of destination totalled around 70. The lobster fishery is second to the salmon in importance with a total production value of $4,378,742, and the cod fishery is third with a value of $2,758,140. The production value of the lobster fishery shows an increase over 1934 of $108,978, or 3 per cent, while the cod value shows a decrease of $569,367, or 17 per cent. All of the lobsters and 98 per cent of the cod come from the Atlantic coast. Other important commercial fishes are herring, whitefish, sardines, halibut and haddock.

Among the provinces, British Columbia occupies first place, owing to the large output of salmon in that province, while Nova Scotia is second and New Brunswick third. In Nova Scotia, the chief fishery is the lobster, and in New Brunswick, the sardine.

The total quantity of fish of all kinds, including shell fish, caught and landed during the year was 9,532,017 cwt., and the value to the fishermen at the point of landing, $20,755,787, compared with a total catch in 1934 of 9,330,869 cwt., and a value to the fishermen of $19,714,935.

Foreign Trade

Exports—The value of fish and fishery products of Canadian origin exported during the year 1935 was $24,859,486, an increase over the preceding year of $2,362,351, or 11 per cent. The chief items in order of value are canned salmon, $7,394,632; canned lobster, $2,274,783; fresh lobster, $1,641,300; dried cod, $1,538,203; and fresh and frozen salmon, $1,228,162. Each of these items, excepting dried cod, shows an increase over 1934. The principal countries of destination are the United States, which took goods to the value of $10,321,296; the United Kingdom, $6,759,505; and Australia, $2,060,351. The value of exports to these three countries, combined, represents 77 per cent of the total exportation during the year. Altogether there were 87 countries to which Canadian fish and fishery products were shipped in 1935.

Imports—The imports of fish and fishery products into Canada, for consumption, were valued at $2,597,856, compared with $2,121,762 in 1934. Chief among the imports are sardines and oysters, the former from Norway and the latter from the United States. There is also a considerable importation of fish oil—principally cod liver oil and whale and spermaceti oil.

Forest Resources

In Canada there are approximately one hundred and sixty different species and varieties of plants reaching tree size. Only thirty-one of these are coniferous, but their wood forms 80 per cent. of the standing timber and 95 per cent. of the sawn timber. While the actual number of species of deciduous-leaved trees seems large in comparison to their commercial importance, out of a total of some ninety species and varieties only four or five are worthy of comparison with the conifers.

Of the total area under forest at the present time, amounting to 1,153,005 square miles, about 379,000 square miles carries merchantable timber, and 413,000 square miles carries young growth which if protected from fire and other damage will eventually produce merchantable timber. All this area is so situated as to be commercially exploitable at present. The remaining 361,000 square miles is considered as non-productive or unprofitable to operate under present conditions, although most of it will undoubtedly become commercially exploitable in the near future. In round figures some ninety per cent. of Canada's forest area is still owned by the state.

Forest Depletion

It has been estimated that Canada's total forest production in 1934 involved the cutting of 2,299,547,000 cubic feet of standing timber. This constitutes only the annual depletion for use and to it must be added the volume of material annually destroyed by fire, which exceeds 230,000,000 cubic feet of merchantable timber and the young growth on 550,000 acres. Insects and fungi destroy annually at least 700,000,000 cubic feet. The latest available estimate places Canada's forest resources at 273,656 million cubic feet of standing timber. There is a steady increase in volume taking place in all healthy stands of timber due to annual growth; this can be stimulated by the application of scientific forest management. It is now a profitable investment to plant trees in Canada under certain conditions.

Production

The production of sawn timber in Canada reached its maximum in 1911 with a reported cut of 4,918,202 M. ft. b.m. The 1934 production represents an increase of 31.7 per cent. in quantity from 1933. The products of the group of industries under sawmill operations are compared for 1933 and 1934 in the preceding table.

Fur Trade

Changes in the fur trade have been inevitable. The railway first revolutionized conditions throughout the country, then more recently the advent of the motor vehicle has influenced the extension of highways to the borders of settlement, and beyond. Boats now ply the larger lakes and rivers, and the aeroplane is requisitioned for the transportation of furs from the more inaccessible districts. Competition has increased and new territory is eagerly sought as in the days prior to 1821. This increase in trapping and the improved methods of capture, together with the advance of lumbering, mining and agricultural settlement, have driven fur-bearing animals farther and farther afield, and if government authority had not intervened there would inevitably have followed a general depletion of Canada's fur resources, and for some species, extinction. To meet the situation, the provinces, all of which have jurisdiction in matters affecting the fur-bearing animals and game in their respective provinces, have enacted laws to regulate the capture of the animals and to provide for close seasons during certain periods of each year, and are working in co-operation to obtain a more complete understanding of wild life conditions in the Dominion. Conservation has been made a special object of policy of the Dominion Government, also, through the organization in 1916 of the Advisory Board of Wild Life Protection, to co-ordinate the efforts of various departments in matters relating to the conservation of the wild life resources of Canada. The Northwest Game Act and the Migratory Birds Convention Act are the most important subjects to which the attention of the Board is specially directed and upon which it makes advisory recommendations. In addition, the Board investigates and studies all problems relating to the protection and better utilization of all fur-bearing animals, "big game" mammals and to bird life, whether game birds, insectivorous birds, or others. The Board serves entirely without remuneration and during the whole period of its existence it has incurred no expenditure. The activities of the Dominion as a whole, with respect to wild life, are co-ordinated through biennial conferences of Provincial and Dominion Game Protection officials. These conferences are called by the Department of the Interior, and have done much good in evolving plans for the preservation of Canada's wild life resources.

Fur farming now plays an important part in the fur trade of Canada, the value of pelts of ranch-bred animals representing approximately 31 per cent of the total annual value of the raw fur production of the Dominion. The fox has proved the most suited for domestication, although other kinds of fur-bearers are being successfully raised in captivity—mink, raccoon, skunk, marten, fisher, muskrat and beaver.

The important markets for Canadian furs are London and New York; the trade tables for the 12 months ended June 30, 1935, show that of the total of $15,224,342 worth of raw furs exported, the United Kingdom received $9,755,922 and the United States $4,626,876. At the close of the Great War, Montreal took a position as an international fur market, holding the first Canadian fur auction sale in 1920. At the sales held in Montreal during the year 1935 the pelts sold numbered 1,342,769 while the value amounted to $4,562,669. Fur auction sales are held also at Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver.

Minerals

Mining ranks second among Canada's primary industries with mineral products becoming more and more a governing factor in commerce and manufacturing. During 1935 Canada held the following places in world production—first in nickel, platinum metals and asbestos, second in radium and zinc, third in silver and gold, and fourth in copper and lead. The premier position in the production of nickel is not challenged; asbestos retains its major position and Canada is assured a prominent place among the principal mineral producing countries of the world.

Ontario, Quebec, and British Columbia are the three leading mineral producing provinces of the Dominion, though Nova Scotia and Alberta are the two largest coal-producing provinces. Manitoba and Saskatchewan are becoming increasingly important as mineral producers. In 1935 Ontario produced 50.9 per cent of the total value of the mineral output for Canada; British Columbia, 15.6 per cent; Quebec, 12.5 per cent; Nova Scotia, 7.4 per cent; Alberta, 7.1 per cent, and the remainder was made up of production from New Brunswick, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and the Yukon and North West Territories.

Increases in outputs of many mineral products and improved prices for several metals combined to make 1936 a record year in the mineral production of Canada. New high points were established in the production of gold, nickel, lead, zinc, platinum metals, asbestos and salt.

According to the latest census available, Canada possessed, in 1934, 25,663 manufacturing establishments with capital investments in lands, buildings, equipment, etc., amounting to $4,703,-917,730 employing 545,162 persons with salaries and wages amounting to $533,594,635. They consumed $1,230,977,053 worth of raw materials (not including fuel) and produced goods to the value of $2,533,758,954.

Canada's rich endowment in water power resources is the outflow of a fresh water area more than two and a half times the combined water and land area of Great Britain. The abundance and wide distribution of these resources and of their development is shown in Table 1. (page 146). The water power resources included in this tabulation provide for a total commercial installation of about 43,700,000 h.p. (over five and one-half times the installation at Jan. 1, 1937), seasonal shortages being provided for by water storage, by interconnection with plants operating under different load and water conditions or by fuel auxiliary plants.

Canada's total hydraulic installation of 7,945,590 h.p. is divided in Table 2 below according to the purpose of the various developments. Approximately 98 per cent. of the electricity sold by central electric stations for power purposes is produced by water power and this combined with the water power installations maintained by the manufacturing industries results in more than 80 per cent. of Canada's industrial power equipment being operated hydraulically.

Column 2 includes only hydro-electric stations which develop power for sale.

Column 3 includes only water power ACTUALLY DEVELOPED by pulp and paper companies. In addition to this turbine installation pulp and paper companies have motor equipment for operation by hydro-electricity purchased from the central electric stations totalled in Column 2, aggregating more than 1,029,000 h.p., making a total of more than 1,634,000 h.p. actually developed for the manufacture of pulp and paper. Large amounts of electricity are also purchased for use in electric hoilers rated at more than one and three-quarters million horse power.

Column 4 includes only water power actually developed in connection with industries other than the central electric stations and pulp and paper industries. These industries also purchase power from the central electric stations totalled in Column 2.

Column 5 totals all water wheels in hydraulic turbines installed in Canada.

Column 6 shows the population of Canada at June 1, 1936, as estimated by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Column 7 averages the developed water power per 1,000 population.

Employment

The variations in employment provide one of the best indices to the current business situation. As a measure of these fluctuations, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics maintains a monthly record of the employment afforded by some 9,700 firms throughout Canada, representing practically all lines of industry except agriculture, fishing, hunting, domestic and professional services and highly specialized business, such as banking, insurance, etc. During 1936, the staffs of the reporting employers varied from 918,700 at April 1 to 1,053,000 at November 1, averaging 979,741 in the twelve months. While industrial activity in recent years has generally been at a low level, considerable improvement was indicated during 1936, resulting in a higher average of employment than in any other year since 1930; the index (based on the 1926 average as 100) averaged 103.7, compared with 99.4 in 1935, 96.0 in 1934 and 83.4 in 1933.

The recovery indicated during 1936 extended, on the whole, to the five economic areas, to most of the leading industrial cities, and to the majority of the industrial groups included in the monthly survey. Manufacturing showed uninterrupted expansion from January 1 to October 1; during these months, the index of factory employment gained by 12.6 per cent. Despite seasonal curtailment in the last weeks of the year, the index in this group at the end of 1936 was higher by 10.5 per cent than at January 1, and by 5.5 per cent than at December 1, 1935. Logging, mining, transportation and communications, services and trade showed gains during 1936 as compared with 1935, a continuation of the improvement shown in 1935 over 1934.

Some Yardsticks for Measuring Ability to Export

It is not to be assumed that the information in the following synopsis is complete in all detail since in actual exporting complications arise which cannot be anticipated.

In the industrial world, how often have you heard the question asked, "How can I export without a direct loss on every sale?" It is the consideration of this problem that will be dealt with in a general way in this article.

To start at the logical beginning, the first and foremost problem is to know your costs. Not the costs as you know them for the general domestic business and which are used as the basis for establishing domestic prices, but rather your "export costs," which are entirely different.

Let it be assumed here that the problem of entering into the export market arises after an industry has been firmly established to do business in its own country. This is fundamentally sound. It would not be considered entirely safe practice to work up a business which would have to rely entirely on a certain definite proportion of export business.

When a company is established, the primary desire of the management is to set Canadian selling prices so that there shall be the desired return on the capital invested arising out of the business to be secured in the home markets. This practice having been definitely established, it follows that export business might be considered in the light of extra volume which will in no way interfere with the domestic set up.

If this point of considering export business as an unexpected windfall and entirely additional to what has been planned to make the necessary return on the capital investment is kept in mind, it will then follow that export selling prices can be lower than those used in the home market and yet can show an economic profit as well.

Difference in Export Costs

It is true that if the financial statement is studied, an amazing number of red figures would be in evidence provided the same costs were used for both domestic and export sales. It is also true that there is the criticism of the domestic buyer that he has to pay a higher price for his product than he can perhaps buy it for in some export country. There are several answers to this reaction. If there were no exports the prices paid would remain as they always had been. Why then change the price just because exports happened to come along? The money received from exports makes the home country wealthier and part of this added wealth will find its way back, indirectly, into the pockets of the critics.

We, in Canada, are passing through that stage of re-adjustment occasioned by reducing export markets. To some, this experience has proved all but disastrous. It may have been that in a large number of cases the effect of the large export volume caused the domestic prices to be reduced and when the export markets shrivelled up, it became impossible to increase the prices to take care of this loss of volume.

In considering export costs, there are many angles to be reckoned with. In view of what has been already discussed in the preceding paragraphs, it might be as well to see how the costs would be affected by just considering exports as unforeseen added volume. The expenses of an industrial organization may be broken down into several components such as: (1) Fixed Expenses, (2) Non-controllable Expenses, (3) Variable Expenses.

Analysis of Expenses

In the first group come such items as depreciation, taxes, insurance and expenses of a like nature. In the second group come the salaries and expenses of those permanently required to carry on the business. These expenses are very much the same as fixed charges except that they can fluctuate, but only within a narrow range. In this group would come the salaries of executives, superintendents, foremen, clerical staff, purchasing, material and accounting departments, etc.

The expenses of these two groups are constantly there. Therefore, whether the volume is large or small, these expenses go on just the same.

Referring to the last group, namely the Variable Expenses, these rise and fall in direct proportion to the productive effort—such items as factory supplies, material handlers' wages, electricity and water consumed and many other items required only when applied directly to the manufacturing operations.

Reviewing these various cost items, it is discovered that a basis can be arrived at which can be used as a yardstick for setting export selling prices. Tabulation of these cost factors would appear as follows:

- (1) Material Costs
- (2) Direct Labor Costs
- (3) Variable Costs
- (4) Total Basis for Establishing Export Selling Prices
- (5) Non-controllable Expenses
- (6) Fixed Charges
- (7) Total Domestic Cost Used for Establishing Domestic Selling Prices.

From the above illustration it would appear that a selling price established for export that would be greater than the total called for under item Number Four above would create an economic profit. This is the first step toward arriving at a basis for figuring export prices.

Origin of Materials

The next step to take is to examine the materials that are used for fabrication. Some are probably imported. Some are purchased in Canada. But do not stop there—trace the materials right back to their origin. They had to come out of the ground, and if the ground was Canada, that is as far as the quest for information leads, but if the search through the various stages shows that the basic materials have been imported, then this material—indirect though it may be—is as much an imported product as if it were imported direct by the exporting manufacturer.

Drawback Regulations

There are "Drawback Regulations" which are administered by the Canadian Government's Department of National Revenue or Customs Drawback Division. These regulations provide for the return of ninety-nine per cent. of all duties paid, upon satisfactory proof being submitted that the finished or semi-finished fabricated articles have been exported from the country. By taking advantage of this situation the duties that are paid on articles used in a completed or semi-completed article are practically all recovered, and, furthermore, all those indirect duties such as are in the various parts purchased from a Canadian supplier are also recoverable. These sources of reducing costs should not be overlooked. The results are often surprising, sometimes leading to the meeting of export prices which had been considered untouchable.

In a previous paragraph attention was drawn to the basis for establishing export selling prices. This is again emphasized, for any manufacturer in Canada who is supplying another manufacturer who in turn is actually exporting is as much an exporter as the exporter of the finished product. Therefore, in purchasing Canadian materials, the exporter has a right to expect that his supplier will give him a better export price than that given for his domestic business. It is "found" business. It cannot be overlooked that in bidding for export markets the competition of the whole world is invited. Prices must be right. If the co-operation of the suppliers is not given, the possibilities for exporting by the ultimate exporter becomes very poor. If, however, he is willing to look for exports on the basis previously outlined, every one of his associates will become partners with him in his foreign trade venture.

Comparison of Costs

Reviewing the various points that have been covered thus far, we might just see what an export cost would look like compared with a domestic cost. We will assume that an article costs one hundred dollars, which will be broken down into material, labor and all other expenses. We will also assume that thirty-five dollars is from domestic purchasers and thirty-five dollars represents direct importations. The first set up will be as follows:

Duty on directly imported materials.....	$12.25
Directly imported materials.....	35.00
3% Excise Tax.....	$47.25
	1.42
		$48.67
Domestic purchases.....		35.00
Freight on materials.....		1.33
Direct labor.....		5.00
Variable expenses.....		5.00
		$95.00
Fixed and non-controllable expenses.....		5.00
		$100.00

Summary—

		Percentage
Imported Content.....	$56.17	71
Canadian Content.....	22.87	29
	$79.03	100

This illustration shows that if 25% Empire content were required, the conditions could be met, but if 50% was the standard, then the requirements could not be met. This example has been worked to show the principle followed in figuring Empire qualifications. Strictly speaking each country has its own regulations and administers them independently. In some cases the "exchange" paid on imported materials has been considered as an imported cost item and has therefore made the matter of qualifying more difficult.

A firm going into the export markets would do well to consider some of the points discussed. A very valuable aid in establishing export markets is the service rendered by the Commercial Intelligence Department, a department operated by the Dominion Government. This department is constantly in touch with the Canadian trade commissioners who are situated all over the world. It also keeps a thoroughly up-to-date record of all foreign and Empire tariffs. In addition to this government department the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, with its head office in Toronto, can prove of invaluable assistance in the study and developments of export trade.

Export trade properly developed is wealth. We all need the wealth—so the development of export markets should be the aim of all.

Five Methods of Doing Export Business

On the following pages will be found articles by experienced Canadian exporters who have proved by results obtained that their methods are correct.

These articles do not include all known methods, but they do cover the majority of recognized methods that so far have proved successful in Canada. Many firms operate combinations of these methods, depending on the types of markets to which they are selling. Each method should be considered in the light of the characteristics of one's own business and of the possible proportions to which the export side of it may grow.

The five methods range from the comparatively simple task of handling a highly specialized line by mail and the co-operation of Trade Commissioners to the handling of a very wide range of articles all used in the same trade by means of the establishment of wholesale branches of the Canadian house abroad.

Each method has its dangers and difficulties as well as advantages, and each is specially suited to certain general classes of business or types of distribution in export markets. No matter what method is adopted there is little doubt that a personal investigation of overseas markets by a principal or chief executive of the Canadian firm is the best preliminary in the development of successful export business. The initial costs of an investigation of this type may seem high at the time, but in most cases expenditures of this kind have proved to be a successful investment.

METHOD NO. 1

Development of an Export Trade Through Branches in Other Countries, Owned by the Parent Exporting Manufacturer in Canada

(Suitable for companies with a diversified product, most or all of which can find extensive export markets subjected to world-wide competition.)

The manufacturer who is endeavouring to build up an export trade to provide an increased and permanent outlet for his products and not simply looking for a channel through which to dispose of some surplus stock provided for domestic trade or to take up some plant capacity temporarily available should consider carefully the advisability of doing so through his own branches abroad, provided, of course, that his line is of a nature to warrant this consideration.

In contemplating the organization of a branch in a foreign country a great many conditions require to be taken into consideration. The territory should therefore be carefully surveyed to ascertain not only the present demand for his product but the possibility of increase in this demand for the future and how this increase is to come about. The state of the local industry and the competition therefrom, as well as competition from other sources requires to be looked into; also the possibility of securing a sufficient number of dealers of a satisfactory type to handle the lines; the general financial standing of these dealers and their attitude toward meeting obligations when due. Study should also be made of local preferences and prejudices, as it is surprising the influence these have in some parts of the world. Customs Tariffs and the possibility of revisions thereto; location for branch headquarters at a point where there are ample facilities at reasonable cost for the reception and storage of bulk stocks, as well as convenient and adequate transportation service for distribution, also require to be looked into. These, and a number of other matters which will suggest themselves, should be carefully investigated in order to give the question intelligent consideration and arrive at a decision.

If, after investigation, the manufacturer is satisfied that a sufficient demand for his product exists in a certain country and is also satisfied that conditions generally would warrant consideration being given to the establishing of a branch selling organization there, then the advantages and disadvantages of the branch system will require to be carefully weighed.

Marketing through a branch selling organization presents several advantages:

1.—The entire effort of the selling organization is concentrated on the one line and there are therefore no diverting interests as is frequently the case where a jobbing house handles a large range of goods. The manufacturer's products under the branch system cannot at any time be treated as a side line to be ignored when goods returning a greater margin of profit can be sold. Travellers and salesmen are not tempted to follow the line of least resistance as is possible where they have optional lines to offer to a dealer.

2.—If a line is one requiring service of any kind, the manufacturer can ensure his own and his customers' interests being properly cared for by providing a service staff having a thorough and expert knowledge of his goods, and it is recognized that an efficient service, where required, brings increased trade.

3.—A branch selling organization enables a manufacturer to keep more closely in touch with the requirements of the market and therefore be in a position to meet, or even anticipate, changing demands on the part of the purchasing public.

4.—In operating through a branch selling organization, the manufacturer can plan and carry on an advertising and selling campaign best suited to the sale of his lines and is free to take such action as he may consider necessary to meet any unusual conditions which may arise from time to time without having to depend upon or to consider first the interests of the importing jobber.

5.—From the standpoint of financial risk, instead of having one or two large accounts, the manufacturer will have a number of smaller accounts scattered throughout the country. In the opinion of many, a number of smaller accounts is an advantage as, after all, there is something to be said in favour of not putting the eggs all in one basket.

6.—It is reasonable to expect that the expense involved in the operating of a branch selling organization could be met by the additional margin obtained through selling direct to the dealers instead of to a large importing jobber. Even if the Branch could not do better than break even on its operations, the manufacturer would still have the advantage of his manufacturing profit on a larger volume.

7.—An esprit de corps can be developed which is a valuable asset in any selling organization.

There are, of course, some disadvantages, for instance:

1.—During a seasonal slackness or a period of temporary depression, when the demand for the manufacturer's particular product may drop off, the selling organization is handicapped through not having other lines with which to fill in.

2.—The necessity of carrying stocks which, in dealing with a large importing jobber, would very likely have been sold outright. This carrying of stocks also involves the making of provision against obsolescence.

3.—The handling and following up of numerous smaller accounts.

4.—A somewhat increased overhead at headquarters because of the necessity for executive supervision.

There are no doubt other disadvantages, some more applicable to one line than to another; however, the advantages of operating through a branch selling organization would appear to much more than offset the disadvantages, assuming, of course, that the manufacturer's line is sufficiently large and varied, the demand sufficient, and conditions generally favourable to operating in this way.

Except for the Chief Executive and perhaps one or two key men, an overseas branch should be staffed by men who speak the language of the country and who have an intimate knowledge of the country, its requirements, the people and their customs. The Branch Manager, or Chief Executive, should be one who is thoroughly familiar with the Company's products and policies and one who possesses good sound judgment. Located as he usually is, thousands of miles away from headquarters, he is frequently called upon to deal with important problems requiring prompt attention which cannot be conveniently or adequately discussed with his Head Office by telegraph or even by telephone, which is now available.

Several Canadian companies are already operating through branch houses abroad. No doubt any of them would be willing to assist other manufacturers contemplating operating in the same way by supplying whatever information they may have available.

METHOD NO. 2

Development of Export Trade Through Resident Agents or Representatives Visited at Intervals by Executive of Canadian Exporting Manufacturer.

(An excellent method that has worked out successfully in many lines as it provides for gradual growth and expansion, coupled with establishment of close personal relations with representatives and informing travel by export executive and an interchange of visits to the plant by representatives. This should be read in close conjunction with Method No. 3, with which it is closely allied.)

From a sales standpoint there are many advantages in having a resident agent, particularly if it is possible to have him visit the plant, get thoroughly acquainted with the product by closely following up through all stages of manufacture, meet the personnel of the Company, familiarize himself with the method of packing and general handling of export shipments.

A few of these advantages are as follows:

(1) A resident agent can approach customers with more confidence in the product as he is able to converse freely in the language of the country. From personal experience in the Far East and Continent of Europe, have found in many cases difficulty in getting anywhere on account of not being able to speak the language.

(2) A resident agent can keep principals posted on competitive lines and demands for necessary improvements to meet market conditions.

(3) Is in the position to revise and add to mailing lists of already established and prospective customers.

(4) Being in close touch with the financial standing of customers is able to take action on principal's behalf in the event of collection difficulties. In this connection might mention we give our resident agents authority to act on our behalf. If draft is refused, instead of costly cables and delays, it is immediately referred to the resident agent for further instructions.

(5) Is able to transfer shipments in event of disputes. In one or two cases, after shipment had left Canada, it was necessary to hold up on account of credit, which was taken care of by cable and turned over to resident agent for disposal elsewhere.

(6) Is in the position to investigate orders or enquiries which may be received by principals direct.

The advantages of visiting resident agents, as the writer sees them, are many; preferably the President, Vice-President, General Manager, or Sales Manager, as in most cases it is best to make a decision on the spot so to speak. Naturally it is better that this executive should be in close touch with the Export Department.

Visits of this kind bring the line up to date, establish confidence between agents and principals, in addition to getting first hand information as to the class of house from which orders are being received.

Might I repeat again it is very desirable if possible, to have the agent visit the factory. The executive can very often obtain information regarding the sale of competitive lines which the agent does not always seem able to obtain. Manufacturing information can very often be picked up. A general size-up of the agent's ability and his connections can be intelligently made. How often have we sized up a man by correspondence and on making his acquaintance found a totally different person than we had pictured.

In some cases the resident agent is the most economical way of conducting export business, providing, of course, you have a real live agent. There is not any definite rule that I know of to select agents or representatives. I recall one time in Australia, of interviewing a resident agent who was not interested, but later on was approached by the same firm's branch in another city, by one of their Directors who saw possibilities in our line. The firm in question turned out to be live representatives.

There seems to be some element of luck in selecting agents or representatives. In order to avoid liability it might be better to classify as resident representatives not resident agents.

METHOD NO. 3

Development of Export Trade Through Resident Agents Abroad With No Personal Visits by a Representative of the Canadian Exporting Manufacturer.

(A very large number of Canadian manufacturers use this method, gradually moving towards Method No. 2, which supplements and strengthens it.)

The policy of appointing a resident Agent abroad without any personal supervision from a representative is one which is attended with many risks and much dissatisfaction unless preceded beforehand by a very careful investigation into.

- (1) The standing of the individual or Company in the business community.
- (2) His or their financial responsibility.
- (3) Integrity.
- (4) Business capabilities.
- (5) Number and kind of other lines carried.

Too often the manufacturer looking for export business will accept the first application received for an agency arrangement, without making the ordinary investigations which would be made upon receipt of a similar application on the domestic market. Even at the present time applications are constantly being received by exporters from many bright and well-intentioned people who, after seeing or hearing of a new line, think they can sell it against old and established importing agencies who have probably controlled their market on this line for a great many years and who if approached by some obscure individual with a competitive line would give it scant consideration. It is, therefore, vitally necessary that the business standing of an individual or company should be known, in order for your product to receive fair and impartial consideration.

This will also protect the intending exporter from the unscrupulous type of individual who sends in his application under an assumed company name, on very elaborately got up business note paper, with the intention of obtaining a good set of samples for nothing.

What emphasis should be placed on financial responsibility will depend entirely on whether the agent is going to act on a purely commission basis, merely soliciting orders and passing them on to the manufacturer for shipping and financing, or to buy direct himself and in turn resell to the trade.

The integrity of an agent should be unquestionable, because any suspicion of sharp practices would immediately reflect on the company appointing the agent, and result in a definite restriction and loss of trade.

The business capability of the proposed agent should also be scrutinized; there should be a reputation for being thoroughly acquainted with all lines carried; ability to promote sales, judicious in the selection of customers and the granting of credit risks. Much profitable export business can easily be turned into serious and heavy losses unless the latter requirement is carefully followed.

Then it is very essential to know the number and kind of other lines carried, to ascertain if they are in any way complementary or competitive. It may be that the applicant is already carrying too many lines and it has been found in practice that there is a tendency to push only those lines easy to sell, or giving the greatest remuneration. Even if the agent is thoroughly reliable, it is difficult to become thoroughly acquainted with every item carried, with the result that the added new lines may suffer in comparison with the older ones. Often an agent will undertake to carry a competitive line just to prevent some other agent more favourably placed from obtaining it, sending in just sufficient orders to create the impression that an effort is being made to place the line on the market, but at the same time actually throttling its development.

There is no difficulty in obtaining resident agents overseas as an advertisement in any export Journal will bring a host of applicants, the majority of whom will guarantee to handle the line offered in the most efficient manner. The problem to solve is to be able to pick out from the replies received the one who will handle your line most successfully.

A much safer way is to entrust your agent problem to the Canadian Trade Commissioners, seeking their advice after giving them full information about your product.

It is not to be suggested that the right person or company will always be selected and in order to guard against errors of judgment and to protect them as far as possible, it would be advisable to limit the contract of any new agent appointed to one or two years, during which time you will have ample opportunity to check up and study the results obtained. If not satisfactory, the contract can then be broken off at the end of the stipulated period.

From the above it is very obvious that only the best type of individual or company should be chosen as your representative and the success or failure to open up an export market will depend very materially upon this.

The decision to appoint an individual or a company will depend to a great extent on the nature of the commodity to be exported, the distribution desired, and the extent of the market. In some countries it may be advisable to confine your agency to a large company who are in touch with all wholesale outlets, and while this may restrict the distribution, it has this compensation that credit risk is practically reduced to a minimum, and in some cases goods are paid for immediately upon receipt at the usual cash terms. Should it be the policy of the exporter to place his goods through as many outlets as possible, then the individual agent provides the best possible medium because he buys nothing for himself but simply solicits orders for the manufacturer and the greatest advantage lies in the ability of such a man to get business for his principals, from all possible buyers in his field. Another added advantage is that being constantly on the ground, he is able to take immediate advantage of every opportunity the moment it arises, and to adjust troubles and complaints that are almost certain to arise in the conduct of any business, whether it is foreign or domestic. Furthermore, there is bound to arise the question of extended and disputed drafts and he can safeguard payments and collections for his principals.

The agent's duties are not confined only to the securing of orders and some of his time will have to be spent in adjusting difficulties as they arise, also explaining away injudicious letters from the home office, for oftentimes a good connection is lost through a lack of tact and courtesy on the part of the sender.

The chief disadvantage in appointing an agent without personal supervision lies in the almost impossibility of making him or them acquainted with changes in business policy by means of a letter, no matter how well constructed it may be. It is then that close personal contact can explain away in a few minutes any misgivings held, what otherwise may take several letters spread over a considerable period. When export business is being operated at little or no profit it is difficult to explain by letter why an advertising allowance cannot be made or unreasonable claims accepted.

In summing up, it can safely be said that satisfactory business can be obtained by this method, although of course it will always lack that undefinable something which always comes with personal contact.

METHOD NO. 4

The Development of Export Trade Through Export Merchants, Export Buying Houses or Indent Houses.

(This method or really two methods in one, with many similar characteristics, offers a wide field for certain varieties of products but if used solely should be chosen with the utmost discretion. The Indent House Method can fit in by consent with Methods two and three and can be attempted simultaneously.)

Co-operation with reliable indent houses in suitable cases provides a means of training members of manufacturers' staffs in export technique and provides specialized selling and personal contacts in export markets while retaining the identity of manufacturers goods through to the customer.

In the "Export Merchants" discussion prospective exporters would do well to ponder seriously over the disadvantages mentioned.)

There are many manufacturers in Great Britain who have been able to secure a splendid volume of business overseas without ever having had even an export department of their own. They have secured this business through London houses operating as Export Merchants or through London Indent firms.

EXPORT MERCHANTS operate really as Export Wholesale Houses. They make an arrangement with a Manufacturer by which they will have the control of anything he makes that may be shipped overseas. If the Manufacturer receives an enquiry from abroad, he refers it to this Export Merchant. The Merchant buys for cash from the Manufacturer and turns around and quotes the merchandise to firms overseas at a price that will give him a profit. He takes all the credit responsibility and even arranges for proper distribution in any market where there would seem to be a demand for this particular product. He has Representatives who travel to different countries in the world and in this way keeps in touch with his connections abroad.

There are many advantages to the Manufacturer from handling his export business in this manner:

1. It costs him nothing to sell his goods. He may at times find it necessary to supply something in the way of samples but this is likely to be a small matter and if it really amounts to something, he can usually arrange to supply the samples at regular prices, less a sample discount.

2. He sells for cash and has no credit risk. Manufacturers are often concerned and rightly so, about the credit standing of firms overseas who may wish to buy their goods. Selling to the Export Merchant, he gets his money even sooner than for domestic sales.

3. He avoids the necessity of having an export department in his business. The Export Merchant looks after all details of shipping, insurance and invoicing and all the Manufacturer has to do is to ship his goods to Seaboard as directed and submit ordinary domestic invoices. The overseas correspondence is conducted by the Export Merchant, who is competent to look after this even if it be in a foreign language.

4. He increases the volume of business passing through his plant and in this way lowers his unit cost of production. This enables him to compete more successfully in his own market.

The disadvantages of this method are not great. There are one or two features that should be considered:

1. He will probably not know his customers overseas and if for any reason, the Export Merchant breaks his connection, he may lose his overseas business. However, the Export Merchant is not likely to do this so long as he gets good treatment from the Manufacturer. It costs money to develop a market and no one wishes to have to do it with a new product if he already has one established.

2. He will need to make sure that the Export Merchant has a distinct possibility to get business for it has been known to happen that representation of a line has been gotten to keep it off the market. For that reason, it should only be given for an initial period of not too long so that if business does not result, he can take other means to get it.

INDENT FIRMS are really Buying Houses or Purchasing Houses in one country for firms located in other countries overseas. Many overseas firms prefer to have all their business attended to by their own buying offices located in centres of countries where manufacturing industries are plentiful. Such firms as these are often a good means of getting manufactured goods introduced to their overseas clients.

1. They usually buy for first class firms only.
2. They pay cash for all purchases.
3. They attend to all details of shipping, insurance, invoicing and correspondence.

On the other hand:

1. They take no responsibility for sales at all but simply place orders on definite instructions received from their clients.

2. They buy only for their own clients and it may be possible there are other firms in overseas countries who might be interested in the goods. The indent houses will not offer the goods for sale to other than their own clients. Their distribution therefore is limited unless a Manufacturer is dealing with a number of Indent Houses operating in the same overseas markets.

The number of Export Merchants and Indent Firms in Canada has been limited, due probably to the fact that it is only comparatively recently that Canadian Manufactured goods have been shipped in volume and variety to overseas markets. It is only reasonable to expect that their numbers will increase and in this way, there will be offered to Canadian Manufacturers a method of securing export business that is sound, economical and safe.

METHOD NO. 5

Development of Export Trade Direct by Mail.

(This method though useful for highly specialized products marketed to well-rated and substantial customers is fraught with many dangers unless subjected to the closest analysis. It is true it grows gradually to the point of becoming exactly like Method No. 3, but the initial stages of attempting to do business direct by mail, without previous intense and discriminating selection of risks, are full of pitfalls and form a pretext for the propagation of many useless schemes.)

Many Canadian industries, organized primarily to supply their domestic market, do not have the large organization nor the facilities necessary to maintain branches or even direct agents handling only their products in foreign markets.

In these days of specialization, the products of many plants must sometimes be sold in the export markets by commission agents handling kindred lines in order to spread the selling expense over sufficient volume to make export sales profitable. In fact, modern practice has resulted in many plants making only one particular line of goods often of interest only to some one trade or profession. Often this means a field so restricted it does not pay the producer to seek export business through ordinary channels. However, such specialized lines usually have the advantage of being of special interest and usefulness to certain definitely known trades or professions. Lists of prospects for such lines can be obtained and trade solicited in foreign, almost as easily as in the domestic market. It is possible in this way to eliminate expensive selling costs and create a demand for such goods as will permit some responsible agent to stock or supply them profitably.

Of course, wherever this is practical, a selling agent right on the ground is always much better and more satisfactory. A good agent can create connections not obtainable by mail and can always learn why prospects are not interested or correct any misunderstanding which no amount of correspondence might bring out. It is no different in foreign markets than at home. Every purchaser takes the easiest way and will usually pay more to be relieved of all details of which he knows little or nothing.

The local agent has special advantages over direct-by-mail solicitation in countries using other than the English language. A good agent will speak fluently the one or more languages used and can usually translate special instructions into English for the manufacturer, thus overcoming many chances of misinterpretation.

Even if carefully written and checked over, transcriptions from English to other languages are sometimes misleading. Often the correct version does not convey the idea or thought as well as if the letter were written in the dialect peculiar to the country in which the prospect resides.

Particularly in financial matters, the agent can secure reports, approach only good accounts and help with collections when necessary.

But in spite of all these drawbacks it is possible to do a good and profitable export business direct by mail with lines which could in no other way be exported to advantage. Goods of exceptional interest and usefulness to some definitely known trade or profession—possibly not ordinarily obtainable except on special order or which must be delivered in fresh condition. Especially such goods as can be sent by Parcel Post.

The first step is to secure an agent to handle deliveries and lists of interested users. This can usually be done with the aid of the Canadian Trade Commissioner in the market to be tried.

The Commissioner should be given full particulars of the product—samples where possible—and suggestions as to the class of trade likely to be interested. He will suggest an agent and the best source for obtaining lists of prospects. Usually he can secure good lists for the exporter. As an official Canadian representative, the Trade Commissioner often has access to records and information not ordinarily obtainable. In fact, he can usually give better advice and suggestions about the market he represents than could be obtained by months of direct investigation. It is his duty to assist in the sale of any Canadian product in his market. No better corps of expert salesmen could be had at any price than is available to every Canadian exporter.

Having arranged for handling deliveries and secured a list of prospects, a carefully prepared campaign for that particular market should be worked out. Letters should always be in the language of that market. When other than English, such letters should be very carefully translated. If time permits, it is always best to submit the suggested series of letters to the Trade Commissioner for O.K. Translations are often much clearer and get better results if in the particular style or dialect in use in the prospect's country.

Full and complete description—good illustrations, showing the goods and their uses—are essential to best results. Even if it does not pay to translate catalogues or circulars, sufficient explanation should be given in the letters to make their advantages and uses clear to the prospect.

Arrangements with the agent should be made to either stock or obtain goods promptly a demand has been created so as not to lose the benefit of direct solicitation. With the help of the Trade Commissioner, a good agent should be arranged for who will supply the demand. With reasonable prospects the agent can be induced to purchase some stock or if sent on consignment to guarantee payment as the goods are sold. Once the agent is convinced there is a profitable demand he will undertake selling on his own account.

There is no doubt that many Canadian products could be exported in this way if reasonable time and care were given all the necessary details. Export markets are particularly desirable to most Canadian manufacturers to permit increased volume production—not always possible in a comparatively restricted home market. Even if such exports are sold close to actual costs, they are a great advantage in absorbing overhead costs and creating steady employment of sometimes highly trained staffs.

One thing should be kept in mind always—for the good of all Canadian exporters. Once foreign trade has been solicited, be prepared to make prompt deliveries of thoroughly dependable goods offering good value. A manufacturer who solicits foreign business only while his trade is slack in Canada and fails to give good service on foreign business during rush times in domestic trade is creating a very bad opinion in foreign markets, not only of his own concern but on all his fellow exporters as well.

Let every Canadian exporter maintain the good reputation created by our Trade Commissioners and by our most successful exporters by good service, reliable goods and fair dealing.

Financing Export Trade

To any manufacturer who realizes the difficulties of producing an article which fills the requirements of foreign markets, and of securing satisfactory customers for that article against the competition of the other manufacturing countries of the world, the importance given to the subsequent details of the business may seem, at times, a little exaggerated. It is undoubtedly true, however, that close attention to those details of export business which follow the consummation of a sale, are of the greatest importance. The foreign customer not only wants standard quality goods at a competitive price, but also wants those goods delivered to him within contract time, packed in a proper way and accompanied by all the necessary documents properly made out to the last detail; and if the customer does not get what he wants along these lines, he will take his business elsewhere. Documents which do not arrive as soon as the goods, or a missing consular vise or consular invoice, will cause delays and perhaps fines. A description of the goods which may appear entirely reasonable at this end, may not be at all what is required to secure the proper tariff interpretation in the consignee's country. Such incidents are so vexatious to importers that no firm can expect to secure or retain customers unless close attention is paid to the requirements of their market along these lines. For a firm whose personnel does not know these requirements by experience, it is not always a simple matter to obtain the necessary information. In the present article, an endeavor is made to indicate the assistance which banks can render in this connection, as well as banking requirements in relation to the handling and financing of foreign shipments.

Extension of Credit by Exporters

Credit is an element in most business transactions. It can be understood that it is even more necessary in foreign than in domestic trade, since more time is usually taken up by the movement of goods between seller and buyer when these two are located in different countries, and Custom House delays are often a factor. The seller who receives a request for the extension of credit in connection with a sale has three things to consider:—(1) The financial standing of his customer; (2) the custom of the foreign market in regard to credit terms on the particular commodity being dealt in and (3) his own ability to finance the business.

The seller's bank can obtain for him a report on the prospective customer's resources and the custom of the market in regard to extension of credit. It should be pointed out here, however, that to obtain complete information by cable is usually a very expensive process, so that every effort should be made to anticipate the need for it before the matter becomes urgent. Again, the quality of the information varies. In countries where Canadian bank branches are located, it is often more complete than when received from correspondents. Sometimes, however, accurate detailed information is impossible to obtain. The banker will always do his best to advise the customer whether, in his opinion, the credit risk is reasonable, but obviously there are cases hard to decide, where the seller's judgment must be the deciding factor. Referring now to the third point mentioned above, the ability of the seller to finance the business, it is obvious that he does not want to tie up his capital in goods in transit, or in 90 days' paper awaiting payment, if he can avoid doing so. He may not be able to avoid doing it in all cases, and a certain proportion of exporters' drafts, therefore, go forward on a collection basis. For the rest, all good exporting houses have arrangements with their banks, whereby they can discount sight or time drafts on good names abroad. The willingness of the bank to enter into such an arrangement naturally depends on the financial standing of their customer, and the amount of credit involved.

Bank Discounts

The negotiation of clean bills is tantamount to making an unsecured loan to the drawers, with the added security of the drawee's name after acceptance.

In discounting both documentary and clean bills, the bank's main security, in the first instance, lies in the responsibility of the drawer. In the case of any trouble with the drawee, the bank is in a weak position unless its power of recourse to the maker is reasonably certain to be productive of satisfactory results. Drawers, therefore, must have a capital adequate to bear the loss which may easily arise from an unfortunate export transaction. The extra risk contained in export business does not lie in the greater lack of probity of foreign houses, but in the room which exists for errors and misunderstandings on account of the distances separating buyer and seller, and the difficulty and expense of conducting a long distance legal action. Misunderstandings are specially liable to arise in the case of transactions effected by correspondence. Litigation is often a lengthy and expensive process; in many cases the results are not worth the outlay.

The risk which underlies the discounting of documentary foreign drafts is not always clearly understood and it is not an uncommon thing for a firm which has been unable to finance an export shipment to criticize its bankers for their refusal to discount drafts covering the merchandise. This firm has probably been told, quite truly, that exporting involves the granting of credit. It now gets a profitable and relatively large order from a foreign house on whom good reports have been received. The terms may be sight, thirty or sixty days—quite moderate credit—yet the bank may be unwilling to discount the seller's documentary drafts. The Canadian firm cannot understand the refusal since, in its opinion, the bank is fully covered by the merchandise until acceptance, and, in the case of sight drafts, until payment. The answer is this: that this security of merchandise is often more apparent than real: that many causes for refusal of delivery may crop up, and the goods may then be a thousand miles from a good market, and unsaleable except at a sacrifice. The principal backing is then the capital of the drawer. Where this warrants the extension of the credit involved, the draft will be discounted. Firms of the class that we have referred to were probably of moderate capital, though of good standing. Their domestic business used up their resources to the hilt; and an unsuccessful excursion into the export field for other than a moderate amount might have brought them into a bad position and left a slow loan on the hands of the bank which thought it was discounting a self-liquidating bill.

Currency of Bills

The currency in which a draft is drawn depends on the arrangements made by seller and buyer at the time the sale is effected; and these arrangements will vary according to the country in which the one and the other are located. The object of the drawer of a draft is to secure a certain and definite return from it. He can best do this by drawing in terms of his own money, thus shifting the risk of loss from exchange fluctuations on to the shoulders of the drawee; or, if the drawer's currency is not quoted and dealt in to any great extent in the country of the drawee, the former can make his drafts payable in some stable and well-known currency. Sterling was, par excellence, the money of international trade prior to the war, since it was quoted and dealt in all the world over, and a sterling remittance always could be turned into gold on the London market.

At one time Canadian exporters made great use of United States dollars as a basis for submitting prices to foreign buyers, and as the currency in which their drafts were made payable. The practice is not so much in vogue at the present time. There is only one sound reason for dealing in this way, viz., the fact that in some countries quotations for Canadian dollars are not received as frequently as those for United States exchange. At such points the importer who goes to the bank to take up a draft is liable to get a more accurate and favourable rate if the draft is payable in United States dollars than if settlement is called for in Canadian dollars. The fact that Canadian quotations are not received as frequently as United States quotations, cannot always be avoided. Unless Canada is regularly doing a good volume of business with the country concerned, it does not pay the banks at that point to go to the expense of receiving frequent exchange quotations by cable.

It is not always possible to draw in the currency of the seller's country, since some importers prefer to make payment in their own money. If this money is not exchangeable for gold, and is subject to violent fluctuations in its exchange relations with the currencies of other countries, an importer will find it difficult to make purchases on this basis. If, however, the money of his country is moderately stable, competition may tend to force exporters to draw as the importer desires.

Before the war, drafts on Great Britain, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and the British colonies using sterling currency were drawn in sterling, and the same is largely true today, although for exports to these points from the United States, dollars may be used, or dollar Letters of Credit established. Drafts on the countries of South and Central America are rarely, if ever, phrased in terms of the local currency of these countries, and sterling and dollar drafts predominate. The same is true as regards the Orient.

Drafts on the main European countries were in many cases drawn in francs, marks, crowns, pesetas or whatever the currency might be; today this is not so except insofar as some of the countries which have returned to the gold standard are concerned. Thus, a substantial international business is done in Dutch guilders, and Swiss francs and Swedish crowns are also used. So far, it is not usual for drafts on Germany to be phrased in terms of the new German mark. In all cases, however, our remarks on the wide use of sterling and dollars are more or less applicable.

Exchange Clauses

The fact that a bill is not payable in the currency of the drawee's country at once gives rise to the question of how the conversion rate between the two currencies shall be established. If this were considered a matter for arrangement between the collecting bank and the drawee, it is not difficult to imagine the complications which might arise. Would a bill for $1,000 United States currency drawn on a firm in Buenos Aires, Argentina, be settled for by the drawee paying to the bank an amount of local paper currency which, at par, would equal $1,000 U.S. or would the drawee perhaps consider settlement made by the tender of a sight draft on New York for the face amount of the bill—a settlement which would involve a loss to the drawer, if he had expected to be paid by cable? All these and other possible points of issue, are settled by the addition of a clause to the draft indicating the basis on which settlement shall be effected. The usual clauses for dollar and sterling drafts on foreign countries read respectively as follows:—

Dollar Drafts on Foreign Countries

Payable at the bank's selling rate on day of payment for sight drafts on (Canadian dollars—Montreal, U.S. dollars—New York).

Sterling Drafts on Foreign Countries

Payable at the bank's selling rate on day of payment for sight drafts on London.

Drafts drawn at ninety days' sight on South American points are not uncommon. In the case of such drafts, the drawer will have to realize that he is to lose interest, not only during the transit period of the draft and return remittance, but also during the time occupied by the draft in arriving at maturity. Thus he will have to include in his quotation interest at the prevailing rate made up as follows:—

Transit to and from Argentina and delays	45 days
Elapsed time to maturity date of draft.....	90 days
	135 days

Some drawees are slow about accepting drafts. Therefore, only experience can show exactly what loss of time should be allowed for in such transactions.

It is advisable to include bank commission and other charges in the face amount, if the drawer expects to recover the amount of his invoice in full without deduction.

There are special customs in connection with the collection or negotiation through London of bills drawn on Australia, New Zealand, Africa and the Orient; the details are somewhat too long to be included in an article of this nature, but they may be found in the booklet "Financing Foreign Trade", published by the Royal Bank of Canada.

Instructions to Banks

Exporters, when placing bills with a bank, either for discount or for collection, should be careful to give the bank full instructions in regard to the handling of the drafts in question. Instructions as to whether documents should be surrendered against payment or against acceptance, are so obvious that it is only by some clerical error that they are ever omitted, but there are numerous other points which are frequently not covered when bills are placed with a bank:—the omission sometimes leads to unnecessary trouble and expense. Example of what such instructions may consist of is given below:

Protest for Non-Payment
Non-Acceptance
Permit Drawee to inspect merchandise before accepting draft.

Letters of Credit

A considerable volume of international business is financed by means of bankers' credits. When exporters can manage to have customers open such credits, this is obviously a very desirable way of doing business, because risk of loss and any trouble regarding financing are eliminated. While buyers have to pay the bank at their end a moderate commission for this facility, the extra expense is often compensated for by the more favorable quotations they can secure from sellers if payment is effected in this manner.

When Canadian exporting firms have credits opened in their favour, it will pay them to discuss with their bankers the sense and terms of these documents, if they are in any doubt regarding the provisions embodied therein, or the protection afforded. For example, the credit may be issued by a foreign bank, with whose standing they are not familiar. The Canadian bank can advise them whether the foreign bank in question is entirely responsible. Again, the credit may have a revocable provision which needs to be carefully considered. It is not possible to discuss here the varied aspects of this class of banking document, but it may be said that great care has to be exercised by an exporter to live up meticulously to all the requirements of a credit. Some of these may seem to him absurd and unnecessary, but he must remember that the bank at this end has no authority to vary the instructions in any way, shape or form. If they require alteration, the matter should be taken up as soon as advice of the credit is received, instead of waiting until the shipment has been loaded on board steamer and the documents brought to the bank.

No reference has been made in this article to shipping documents, although these are important from a banking point of view when drafts are received from clients, either for collection, or for discount or under terms of Letters of Credit. In the first case, the bank needs proper documents in order to render the client good service; in the second and third cases, it needs them for its own protection. This section of the subject is dealt with in the Royal Bank of Canada booklet which has previously been referred to, viz., "Financing Foreign Trade."

How the Canadian Manufacturers' Association Can Assist Members in their Export Activities

The Constitution of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association which was organized in 1871 and incorporated by Act of Parliament in 1902 provides that "The Objects of this Association shall be to promote Canadian industries and to further the interests of Canadian manufacturers and exporters, and to render such services and assistance to the members of the Association and to manufacturers and exporters generally, as the Association may deem advisable from time to time."

The assistance which the Canadian Manufacturers' Association gives to exporters might be classified under two headings: specific and general.

The Association is in a position to render the following direct assistance.

- 1—Empire and Foreign Tariffs:—The Tariff Department keeps up-to-date and accurate information respecting customs tariffs, customs and consular regulations and invoicing requirements of all countries. Particular study is given to tariff preferences within the British Empire, forms of certificate of origin, and to the percentage of Canadian content required in order to qualify for such preferences. The Tariff Department also advises members respecting the export drawback allowed by the Canadian Government.
- 2—Commercial Reports on Overseas Firms: The Association furnishes free of charge, to members of the Association commercial reports on overseas firms with whom they may contemplate doing business.
- 3—Transportation and Ocean Rates: The Transportation Dept. of the Association supplies information on rail and ocean rates, steamship services, routing, shipping documents, parcel post, trade terms and definitions.
- 4—Enquiries from Foreign Countries: As the organization has up-to-date information in regard to Canadian manufacturers, enquiries which are received from abroad for Canadian products are placed before firms likely to be interested.
- 5—Each year a large number of responsible buyers and agents from abroad visit the offices of the Association, and are put in touch with Canadian manufacturers.
- 6—The Association co-operates very closely with the Commercial Intelligence Service of the Department of Trade and Commerce. It notifies members when Trade Commissioners are visiting Canada, arrange appointments, and advise members of the assistance which this service provides.
- 7—Translation Service: A translation service is at the disposal of all members of the Association. Letters in practically all languages are translated and facilities provided for translating English letters into foreign languages.
- 8—General Information: Information is also given in regard to coding and deciphering cables; names of consuls throughout Canada; figuring C.I.F. prices; statistics of exports; electric currents in various countries; advice on export procedure and particulars of foreign currencies.

Under general, or indirect aids we might mention:

- a—Keeping members constantly advised of changes and developments in the regulations and laws of overseas countries which might affect their interests.
- b—Co-operation with the Canadian Government Exhibition Commission in the organization and administration of exhibitions abroad where Canadian products are exhibited. During the last few years, the Association has assisted in the organization of the New Zealand and South Seas International Exhibition at Dunedin; the British Empire Exhibitions at Wembley; the British Empire Trade Fair at Buenos Aires, and the Canadian Section of the British Industries Fair which is held each year at Olympia and Birmingham.
- c—Assistance in the organizing of properly sponsored trade tours to various markets.
- d—The publication of books and pamphlets relating to export methods and procedure and general publicity in regard to the development of Canadian export trade.
- e—Administration of Export Clubs and arranging of the Export Courses.
- f—Publication of the Canadian Trade Index which gives a classified and alphabetical list of the manufacturers in Canada and is distributed throughout 75 countries. Explanation of List

THE list beginning on the opposite page comprises the names and addresses, alphabetically arranged, of all firms appearing in the classified section of the Canadian Trade Index. In this list we have tried to give the users of the book some information that will be useful in getting into quick touch with the makers of any desired article.

No street addresses are given in Part III (the classified article section). These are recorded where necessary to complete the address in Part II (the alphabetical list).

We have not attempted to give, in this list, any full account of the products. These will all be found under separate headings in the classified section on pages 283 and following. Only where the firm or company name does not indicate the line of goods manufactured have we mentioned some of the articles produced.

The address given is that of the main place of business in Canada, usually the head office, although it may be both factory and office address. The addresses given later, under "Factories," are those of branch factories. Where branch offices in Canada are mentioned stock is generally carried at these points.

For. Rep. or simply Rep. means foreign or other representative for export sales purposes.

The Cable addresses and codes will be found useful in initiating and transacting export business.

THE EDITOR.

Guide to Classified Index

THE method of indexing the material on the succeeding pages is that by which the most important word in headings is generally placed first. The arrangement then proceeds in the proper alphabetical order. In the majority of cases it will be found that the noun or main name comes first, i.e.—Furniture, bedroom; Hardware, builders'; Leather, boot and shoe upper, etc. This allows the grouping of all similar articles close together. In other cases, where the inversion seems unnatural, the headings have been listed as they run—air appliances; fire escapes, etc. If any difficulty is experienced in locating desired headings or articles, users of the book should try both forms of listing. This will enable the heading to be found if it appears in the book at all.

In all cases we have endeavored to use the names most commonly known. It is possible that we have listed some articles and materials under names that differ from those that our subscribers use. Synonyms will therefore be useful to bear in mind.

Cross references have been supplied where two or more names are commonly used to describe the same article.

Street addresses of the firms listed in the classified section are provided where necessary in the alphabetical list of names (on blue sheets) immediately preceding the Classified Section (Part III, pages 283 to 650).

Attention is also called to the French Index of articles, which is placed immediately after the Produce Section (Part IV, pages 651 to 656). In a limited edition a Spanish Index also appears following the French Index.

Firms before whose name an asterisk appears are engaged or seriously interested in Export Trade.

Corrections and revisions of these lists are made periodically by the Commercial Intelligence Department of the Canadian Manufacturers Association.

We shall be glad to have the opportunity of giving additional information to any manufacturer or user of the Canadian Trade Index. No charge is made for this service.
